1 Book Synopsis

Executives are bombarded with best-selling ideas and best practices for achieving competitive advantage, but it is often unclear which framework should be applied when or in combination with which others. Should you aim to be big or fast? Should you employ a blue-ocean strategy, be adaptive, play to win—or forget about a sustainable competitive advantage altogether? In a business environment that is changing faster and becoming more uncertain and complex, it's never been more important—or more difficult—to choose the right approach to strategy.

So how can business leaders make sense of it all? Of the many approaches that can be effective under various scenarios, how can they know which one to apply to which part of their business and at which time?

In this book, The Boston Consulting Group’s Martin Reeves, Knut Haanæs, and Janmejaya Sinha offer a proven method to determine the strategy approach that is best for your business. They start by helping you assess your business environment—how unpredictable it is, how much power you have to change it, and how harsh it is. All of these are critical components in getting the strategy right. They show how existing strategy approaches sort into five categories—Be Big, Be Fast, Be First, Be the Orchestrator, and Be Viable—depending on the degree of predictability, malleability, and harshness. In-depth explanations of each of these approaches provide critical insight to help you match your approach to strategy to your environment, determine when and how to execute each one, and avoid a potentially fatal mismatch.

Instead of designing and offering yet another approach, Your Strategy Needs a Strategy helps practitioners and students of business alike determine what’s the right move for them: How to choose the right approach to strategy at the right time, putting their business in the best position to compete and win in the global marketplace.

As a result, Your Strategy Needs a Strategy is the perfect complement to any business class—providing an engaging blend of real cases and situations with opportunities for analysis, review, and application.

2 Key Reasons to Include Your Strategy Needs a Strategy in Your Curriculum

- The book is built on recent case studies and rich with quotes from C-level executives that make the content tangible. It helps students gain an in-depth understanding of the relevant strategic practices of companies as diverse as Alibaba, AIG, and Mahindra & Mahindra.
- It teaches your students a meta-level view of strategy—not a one-size-fits-all solution, but a framework to apply to a wide range of business contexts.
- The framework can be applied to current business events such as Google’s shift to Alphabet or the new Apple TV, helping students consider how they might interpret and gain lessons from today’s news.
- The book comes with an advanced Strategy Game that runs on Apple (iPads and iPhones) and Android devices and adds an interactive and immersive element to your teaching.
- Your Strategy Needs a Strategy can be flexibly used in your curriculum, as either a multisession or a onetime class to enrich a particular strategy lesson.

3 Classroom Target Audience

Written for practitioners and students alike, the book’s key target audience is actual or aspiring decision makers.

In a classroom setting, Your Strategy Needs a Strategy targets learners across undergraduate, MBA, master’s, and executive education programs. The book is particularly valuable for students interested in corporate strategy, growth and transformation, management, and innovation.

4 Course Use

Your Strategy Needs a Strategy is appropriate for a range of business classes, including:

Strategy Core Course: The Strategy Palette as the choice model for strategic approaches in different circumstances can be seen as the “meta strategy” that connects and integrates a number of different approaches (from classical, which focuses on scale and costs, to visionary, which stresses being first in developing a market). Students can learn about various strategies and improve their thinking on which to apply and under what circumstances.

Elective Strategy Course: Each of the five approaches to strategy—classical, shaping, adaptive, visionary and renewal—can be taught in great detail. Short case studies are available for all of them.

Specialized Strategy Courses (for Example, Strategy and Organizations, Sustainable Strategy, Strategic Decision Making, Strategic Management, Innovation Strategy): Your Strategy Needs a Strategy can be taught for specialized business school courses and adapted flexibly to different requirements.
